

Research and Development

Indsale understands that different customers have different specific needs. Our extensive research and development enables us to meet those customers' needs.

Indsale Limited specializes in the research and development of adhesives and coatings. Our R&D team works closely with our customers around the world to provide both standard and custom formulated adhesives and coatings to meet their unique performance, process and cost requirements for their applications.

The products Indsale develops must pass strict quality testing. Analytical and physical procedures are performed to meet the applicable standards outlined by the PSTC, FINAT, and ASTM methods, as well as any unique requirements of the customer.

Indsale has expanded its laboratory facilities to further advance the development of its polymeric adhesives and coatings.

It is because of our strong foundation in research and analytical procedures that Indsale can stand behind their products.
